Vibrant orange energizes any space, and we're hyped about the modern silhouette and perky brass legs of the Mitchell Gold + Bob Williams Coco sofa, too. Available in multiple fabrics and sizes, $3,680-$3,800.

SPARKS of JOY

When we think about the elements that draw us to our favorite things, color ranks high on the list. Evocative, energizing and soothing — we’ve no idea why one shade evokes positive feelings while another doesn’t. But one thing’s for sure: A hue that speaks to us has the ability to elevate even the most mundane of objects. What else so obviously sets apart an office chair or even a placemat? — Rachel Peters Kreidler

The repeating pattern of elongated tropical leaves set adrift on a sea-blue backdrop visually adds height to any wall. $228 per 56-square-foot roll, Serena & Lily.

Fanciful Santa Barbara umbrellas are custom made from endless combinations of Sunbrella fabrics, trims, valances, shapes and bases. We love the graphic blast of hot pink and a scalloped valance adds retro charm. From $3,900, santabarbaradesigns.com.

The Heddle placemat from Chilewich features cheery woven stripes inspired by the Bauhaus movement. It’s also the company’s heaviest, most durable mat yet. $25 each, Domain XCIV, Into the Garden, Lawrence’s and Neiman Marcus.

Suzanne Kasler designed the Carson wingback desk chair to bring sass and comfort to your home office. We like the brass nailheads and the genius-preferred shade of Linen Green, $969. See more textile choices at Ballard Designs.
